Support Your Ambulance Service!

On Saturday night my father, Rich Jackson, suffered a pulmonary spasm which led to cardiac arrest. The Laurens ambulance service was at my parents' house within 3 minutes after the 911 call. They were able to bring my father back to life by shocking his heart and giving him oxygen.

I spoke with Brian Runneberg about the GREAT TEAM of people that make up this unit. Brian informed me that the ambulance service is in jeopardy of moving out of Laurens. If this were the case last Saturday, my dad would not even be able to fight for the chance to stay alive. I live 5.5 hours away from Sioux City which is where he was airlifted to. I want to ask all children with parents that still live in the area to think about this. During the drive over, my number one thought was that I wanted to tell my Dad how much I loved him just one more time. I was able to do this because of the GREAT TEAM from Laurens.

How important is telling one of your parents how much you love them just one more time? For me, it meant everything. I want to thank the ambulance team for the chance that they gave me. I am deeply appreciative for this chance. I do not know if he is going to make it but Dad knows how much I do Love him since I was able to tell him. If this is important to you, help the ambulance to stay in the community. They may help save one of your loved one's lives. How important would this be to you? It meant everything to me. Thanks again, Todd Jackson

Welcome Peter Fletcher

Classical Guitarist Peter Fletcher will entertain us at 7 pm Thursday, October 11th at the Laurens Library. A native of Atlanta, GA, Peter Fletcher began guitar study at the age of seven under classical guitar instructor, John Sutherland. In December, 1983, he made his formal debut at the age of fifteen under the auspices of The Brasstown Concert Association in North Carolina. In 1990, the Music Teacher's National Association (MTNA) awarded Fletcher a prize at its National Level Competition. In 1995, he received the Master of Music degree from the Eastman School of Music under Nicholas Goluses, and was twice the recipient of an Eastman Graduate Award.

He is in demand as a performer in cultural venues throughout the country. A very special guest engagement was Fletcher's appearance in May 2005 at the World Music Series in Oceanside, California. In January, 2005, Mr. Fletcher was invited to join the distinguished Jury of the 9th Annual Schadt String Competition in Allentown, Pennsylvania. In February 2007 he made his New York Debut at Weill Recital Hall at Carnegie Hall.

Banana Bread to Die For... Literally!

A final look at Maui

Today we head north out of Lahaina and the sights are again spectacular. Twisting, winding roads with scenery that ranges from rainforest to desert. High cliffs and rocky shorelines protecting short stretches of beautiful beach.

Occasionally we'd pull off the road at one of the many "turn-outs" and walk down to the beach for photos or to just absorb the natural beauty. Often we'd share the beach with other sight-seers, sometimes we'd have the place to ourselves, if only for a short time.

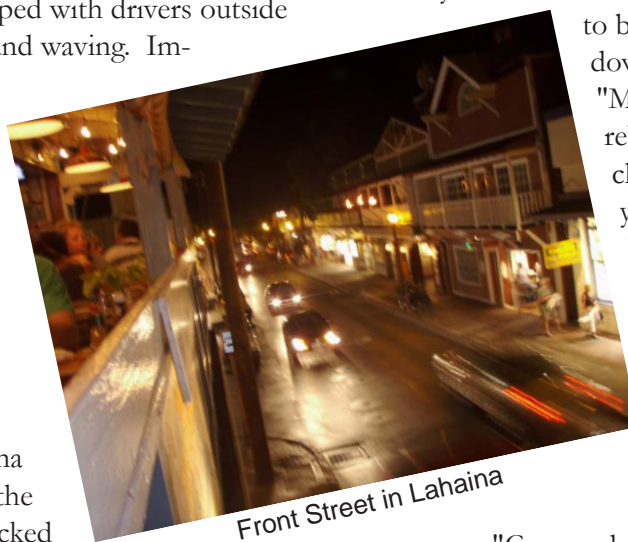

As we proceeded north the road grew narrower, the countryside more deserted and the hills a bit steeper. It seems we'd have thought to bring some extra water after our trek on the Road to Hana, but we didn't and we were hoping to find a stop along the way. Seeing a sign near a turn-out, we were hopeful and stopped for a peek. The sign indicated that the "best banana bread in the universe" was just 5 minutes ahead! Having sampled the "best banana bread on the planet" just days earlier on the Road to Hana, we were up for it and headed back north. The sign's claim matched up with the travel book that we were using—so it had to be true.

Our Town Our Paper!

The travel book indicated that we'd encounter a narrow twisting road ahead and the world's sharpest hairpin turn—so tight that there was no possible way to photograph it. That's because it is at the top of a steep hill at the edge of a cliff! We made it down one side of the ONE LANE road with no problem, made a 180 at the bottom of the gulch and headed up the other side with the hairpin in sight. About a quarter of the way up, we noticed two cars stopped on the hill ahead of us with drivers outside with a rather "now what" look about them. As we inched toward them, we noticed two more cars trying to come down from the hairpin—also stopped with drivers outside pointing and waving. Immediately, Anita and I concluded that we were satisfied to have sampled only the best banana bread on the planet, backed down the hill far enough to find a small indentation in the hillside, spun the Jeep around and headed back to civilization.

One lane... No Guardrail!!!

Biscuits in Paradise

Anyone who has traveled with me knows that I always locate the nearest McDonalds before calling it a day so as to facilitate my morning "biscuit run". Whether it be an English muffin or a buttermilk biscuit, there's always an egg and a piece of sausage involved. Even here in paradise I was able to enjoy me regular morning fare! You will find something a little different on the McD's menu in Hawaii—several offerings made with Spam. Apparently a staple there, you could even order a Spam McMuffin! I passed—you have to draw the line somewhere!

"Maui Dead"

The phrase "Maui Dead" became a regular part of our vacation lexicon. Eager to get the best possible deals from the Front Street vendors, I tried my best to bargain only to be verbally slapped down with the phrase "Maui Dead" and a rebuke that always included the number of years the vendor had been in business. Once you heard the words "Maui Dead" you knew you were at bottom dollar! It went something like this: Rod:

"Can we do any better than $90 today?" Vendor: "I been here 22 year, Maui Dead--$90!" Ninety dollars it was!

That's it from our trip to Maui. Hope you enjoyed my miscellaneous ramblings! Rod

Gov. Chet Culver has officially proclaimed Oct. 7 - 13, 2007, as National 4-H Week in Iowa

In the proclamation, Gov. Culver points to the 4-H program's Iowa beginnings in 1901, making Iowa one of the pioneers in the youth development movement.

Culver said 4-H helps "youth and adults learn, grow and work together to live the 4-H motto: to make the best better."

Other points of pride mentioned in the proclamation are the 127,000 youth participants, more than 12,000 adult volunteers and more than 100 different programs and projects made available to Iowa youth through Iowa State University Extension.

Culver also said, "I urge my fellow citizens to observe this week by connecting with youth, friends, fellow employees and relatives, and with school, community and civic groups to engage in projects benefiting their community."

"Governor Culver's proclamation is a great honor to the Iowa 4-H program," said Chuck Morris, director of the Iowa State University Extension 4-H Youth Development program. "4-H has expanded its curriculum to accommodate youth in larger towns and cities. Many projects and activities emphasize science, technology, leadership, citizenship and communication. Iowa youth also continue to participate in traditional 4-H projects such as livestock and gardening."

For more information about 4-H, contact your local Iowa State University Extension county office or the state 4-H office at (515) 294-1017.

Cyclones Ice the Chargers 39-6

Alta cruised to a 39-6 win for their Homecoming in Alta Friday night. The Alta stands were packed and cheering for their home team. The Chargers came out sluggish and Alta capitalized by scoring their first touchdown with just over two minutes off the clock. It was a Schmitz 6-yard run into the end zone and a Syndergaard kick to put the Cyclones up 7-0.

Schmitz scored again from eight yards out and the kick was good, leaving the Chargers scoreless 14-0 with 4:52 remaining in the first quarter.

The Chargers had the first possession of the second quarter, but couldn't put it all together. A Charger false start and penalties set the tone for the rest of the night. Alta's running back, Cody Nesbitt, scored at the 7:16 mark, leaving the Chargers behind 20-0.

The Cyclones immediately got the ball back on an on-side kick that the Chargers couldn't grab. The Chargers did manage to stop their opponent on a 4th down and one, but couldn't muster any offense against the stingy Cyclone defense.

Alta struck yet again on a huge 64-yard run by Nesbitt, making the score Alta 26 and the Chargers 0. L-M controlled the ball for the rest of the quarter, but never saw the end zone.

Cody Simpson kicked off for the Chargers to begin the third quarter. The Cyclones got two quick first downs to land them in Charger territory. Travis Leuer capitalized on a Cyclone third down and 11, going high into the air to bring down an interception and running 66 yards to the Alta 21-yard line before being brought down. With a second down and 4 yards to go, quarterback Zach Lovin hooked up with Leuer on a 3-yard pass for the Chargers only score of the night. A Lovin-to-Jamison pass was incomplete, making the score 26-6.

Alta struck pay dirt in the fourth quarter on a Hansen-to-Quentin Thomas 26-yard pass and put the ball through the uprights, putting the Cyclones on top 33-6.

The Chargers continued to inflict pain on themselves, letting Alta score their final touchdown on a 32-yard run by Cody Nesbitt, icing the Chargers 39-6.

The Laurens-Marathon defense made some big stops last week against Newell-Fonda, but the unit was exposed by Kevin Hammer's Cyclones racking up 463 yards offensively, while limiting Mike Ehn's Chargers to just 141 yards of offense. Junior Gary Brechler watched from the sidelines almost the entire second half after a collision at mid field. He joined classmates Adam Woodin (medical reasons) and Jarrod Reese (injured knee last week). Andrew Hanson, Rueben Wenell, Travis Leuer, Tyler Smith, Cody Hubbell, Gary Brechler, and Ryan Sernett all put up a great effort defensively, but will need to re-group for their last home game of the season next week hosting Odebolt-Arthur for Parent's Night. The L-M offense will be picking apart the O-A game tapes to try to get back in the win column next Friday night.

Butter Braid Sales Champs!

HorseTech's Riders Shine at Devon

By Rod Johnson

There are some things that everyone should have the opportunity to experience at least once in their lifetime. When you think of sports in that context, you might say that having the opportunity to attend the Super Bowl or a World Series game would certainly fall into that elite class of events--Ok, maybe a big time playoff game! Having had the opportunity to work at the prestigious Dressage at Devon these past few years, I would have to say that this event is one that everyone should see at least once—if you can get hold of a ticket!

Dressage at Devon is the most prestigious Dressage event on the east coast and has been held each September since 1979 in Devon, PA, just west of Philly. A benefit event for the Thorncroft Therapeutic Riding Center, Dressage at Devon attracts competitors from across the country as well as from Canada, South America and occasionally, Europe. Typically the weather is warm and sunny throughout the day and cool and crisp into the evening performances. Not quite fall, but a bit past summer. The vintage fairgrounds features a classic old arena—the Dixon Oval—where the major classes compete. Surrounding the oval are small cottages--smaller than an old style one car garage--that house the vendors. Everything from hot dogs to the Hermes of Paris.

BJ Berry and Corrin Brechler have been working at Devon for several days already setting things up and working the annual breed show earlier in the week. They rotate out and head home as I arrive on Thursday evening for the Dressage competition. Ann

Our Town Our Paper!

Katona from central Kentucky has arrived earlier in the day and will work with me through the weekend.

HorseTech co-hosts the hospitality tent well back from the crowd—back by the barns where the serious folks are looking for caffeine at 7:00 AM each morning. Along with media giant Primedia, HorseTech provides hot coffee, bagels and bottled water throughout the day and wine and cheese in the evening. It is here that we have the opportunity to stop and visit with some of the top dressage competitors in the sport. Many of these riders rely on HorseTech for their supplements and a few are riders that receive HorseTech sponsorship.

This year, World Cup competitor (6th) Courtney King, an Olympic hopeful, and newcomer Liz Austin carried the mantle for HorseTech as the riders hoped to perform well in this Olympic qualifier.

Saturday evening is THE night to be at Devon--it is the musical freestyle finals and we close up shop in time to catch the performance from the sponsor's booth. For the freestyle, competitors are able to design their own programs set to music of their choosing rather than simply performing a standard dressage program, or "test" as it is referred to. You'll see impressive

European warmblood horses (typically the horses are quite large—frequently over 17 hands) moving elegantly to jazz, swing, classical, rock and maybe even some reggae music. All the while the crowd sits in their assigned boxes with their favorite wine, cheese, fruit, etc. With the right horse and rider and the right music, the oval literally rocks! When the weather is cool and clear, Saturday night at Devon is simply magical—something to sit back and behold. This year, it looked as though Courtney King and Idoocus might take the freestyle gold with a score of 73.00. Unfortunately, Lars Peterson (Denmark) scored a 73.40 dropping Courtney into second. Still, an evening to remember.

Sunday

features the GP Special—no music—each horse performing the exact same test in front of the judges. Here the HorseTech sponsored riders take first and second with Courtney taking top honors on Mythilus while Liz Austin secured the red ribbon on Olivier (known as Fizzy around the barn). By 5:30 the competition is complete, the trophies have been awarded and I'm back at the tent finishing the tear-down. It's time to head home, already looking forward to next year!

HorseTech, located in Laurens, provides products to many top riders in the country in return for their endorsement.
